I'm an experienced UX professional and cognitive design practitioner seeking a position where I can utilize my expertise in leading and providing guidance to develop world-class experience design solutions.

At Valley Bank, I held the position of principal UX designer, responsible for redesigning the business's online banking and Valley Business Mobile experiences. This project exemplified the human-centered design approach, aiming to transform and simplify common tasks and app onboarding by enhancing usability and accessibility throughout the entire application.

Additionally, I led the UX design for the launch version of Valley Pay, a SaaS digital wallet specifically tailored for the retail cannabis industry.

Collaborating closely with researchers, product owners, and stakeholders, I analyzed user journey maps, engagement data, and conducted user interviews. I also facilitated cross-functional team workshops to develop a vision for future product variants based on rapid iteration of user flows, sketches, and interactive wireframe prototypes.

During my tenure at Valley Bank, I actively contributed to the design direction of product usability by participating in research studies, analyzing existing products' data, and proposing optimizations and adjustments to eliminate usability frictions and enhance engagement and conversion. I was a key contributor to the design strategy direction, revising user journeys that served as the foundation for the development of updated IA, interaction flows, wireframes, and interactive prototypes in both low and high fidelity. I conducted design reviews, synthesized UX needs for complex products, and presented recommendations to stakeholders, product management, and developed validation user testing, A/B iterative validation, and early-stage product pilot programs.

I have extensive experience working in fast-paced agency environments with diverse clients and industry sectors, including software-as-a-service products.
